Location

The picturesque fishing village of l'Escala is charmingly situated in the south of the Gulf of Roses, just about 40 kilometers from Girona and around 120 kilometers from Barcelona. The area enchants with its stunning landscape, characterized by pine-covered hills, romantic and secluded coves, and long, gently curving beaches. In l'Escala, visitors can enjoy three beautiful sandy beaches: the sheltered beach in Montgo Bay, the lively town beach of Riells, and the expansive, several-kilometer-long beach stretching from l'Escala to Sant Pere Pescador. These beaches are particularly family-friendly and ideal for relaxing days by the sea.

In addition to its picturesque old town, l'Escala features a modern center, Riells, with its shopping street along the seafront promenade inviting visitors to stroll and shop. Here, visitors will find a variety of everyday shops, including bakeries, butchers, and pharmacies, all offering a comprehensive range of products.

This wind regularly provides a clear blue sky and creates perfect conditions for surfers to enjoy their sport. History enthusiasts should not miss a visit to the nearby Greek-Roman ruins of the ancient city of Empúries, located about 2 kilometers away. These excavations, which began around 1900 and continue to this day, offer fascinating insights into the past. To the south of l'Escala, the Cala Montgo and the impressive Montgo Mountain rise up. From here, visitors can enjoy a breathtaking panoramic view over the Gulf of Roses all the way to the nearby Pyrenees, highlighting the beauty of the region in an impressive way..
